Position of the course

This course unit offers students an overview of the key concepts and essential lines of reasoning in economics. This acquired knowledge enables them to understand economic articles in newspapers, magazines and policy texts, but also contributes to a better understanding of other course units.

Contents

- A.1. Introduction (what is economics; requirements, production factors and goods; types of economic systems; modern exchange theory; the financial sector; economic order; development of the economic theories; the economic research method)
- A.2. Foundations of the economic analysis (methodological individualism; homo economicus hypothesis; trade-offs; principle of optimisation; benefits of specialising and cooperation; market as a coordination mechanism)
- A.3. Families, companies and government
- A.4. Markets (markets of goods and services; markets of production factors)
- A.5 Macro-economic relations and indicators
- B. Introduction to research in economics

Initial competences

The general level of education that may be expected from students leaving secondary education. No prior knowledge is required.

Final competences

- 1 Knowledge and an understanding of essential concepts and lines of reasoning in economic science
- 2 Applying these essential concepts and lines of reasoning to historical and current social problems
- 3 Thinking and reasoning skills, and the ability for critical reflection

4. Two Q&A sessions are organised during the semester

Evaluation methods

end-of-term evaluation

Examination methods in case of periodic evaluation during the first examination period

Written examination with open questions, written examination with multiple choice questions

Examination methods in case of periodic evaluation during the second examination period

Written examination with open questions, written examination with multiple choice questions

Examination methods in case of permanent evaluation

Possibilities of retake in case of permanent evaluation

not applicable

Extra information on the examination methods

Written examination with open questions and multiple-choice questions
Bonus points can be gathered via two electronic self-tests

Calculation of the examination mark

The periodic assessment (the written examination) is scored on 100% (i.e. 20) of the points

Each self-test for which at least half of the questions are correctly answered yields a bonus point -- bonus points are automatically transferred to the second exam period (there is no second chance)

Total scores above 20 are automatically reduced to 20
