Keywords

internship, social work practice and theory

Position of the course

This course is situated in the ‘schakelprogramma’ social work and is intended to create greater insight into a social-pedagogical perspective on social work.

Contents

The course has been named ‘practice-theory and internship’. This linkage refers to the main perspective onto this internship: it is not only about ‘exercising professional competencies and skills’. Yet foremost, this internship is about creating bridges from the internship and concrete social work practice towards theory. This mutual linkages between theory and practice is the central point in this internship. As such, the social work practice is linked to the overall social work curriculum, both in the starting points of social work and in its perspective onto professionalisation.

Initial competences

Final competences

1 Making a pedagogical research question: the process towards a clearly defined research question to study a social work practice.

2 To be able to show the social and scientific relevance of the research.

3 Communicating with the social work practice and being able to communicate the research results towards the social work practice.

4 Relating the research with agogic theory building.
