Position of the course

This is a specialisation course on the history and historiography of the European expansion from the 15th to the 18th century as well as on the resulting historical interactions on worldwide scale.

Contents

Introduction to the historiography concerning the process of European expansion and its evolution from a rather Eurocentric vision towards a history of interaction. Analysis of the consequences for the history of Europe, Africa, Asia and America on a political, economic and cultural level.

Initial competences

Thorough knowledge of the European history of the Middle Ages and the Early Modern period (15th-18th centuries) as well as the general lines of World History, as provided in the framework of the bachelor programme in history.

Final competences

1. To have knowledge of a historical framework with reference to the evolution of European expansion and the interaction of related historical processes both in Europe and on other continents.
2. To have insights on historical developments and processes
3. To relate tendencies of historical thinking with broader visions on man and society
4. To formulate relevant contributions to discussion on the basis of scientific literature.
