Position of the course

This course aims at acquainting the students with scientific research into and the practice of translation revision, which is a crucial step in the translation process, ensuring the quality of the translation in relation to the source text and comparable target texts. To that end, an overview of scientific insights is provided which will help students to develop and enhance revision competences.

Contents

This course consists of four parts. The first part addresses the specific status of revision in comparison to editing, post-editing, reviewing, self-control; additionally, several revision principles, -parameters, -procedures, -competences, and -quality are presented. Special attention is paid to the European norm 15038 and the ISO norm 17100:2015, as well as to the use of translation tools and documentation.

The second part provides an overview of the scientific research into translation revision, including revision competence and quality. This part aims at developing and enhancing the revision competence of the student via the insights of scientific research.

The third part of the course consists of specific, realistic revision exercises (from a variety of genres, using various translation tools), based on the knowledge, skills, methods, strategies and tools provided in the preceding parts and in previous courses on Dutch written proficiency and revision. Crucially, students learn to appreciate the positive effects of metacognition, revision routines and collaboration on revision.

The fourth part of the course focuses on the role of the legal translator/ revisor, and more specifically on the deontology of the sworn translator as described in KB 18.04.2017. It covers administrative, functional, formal and ethical aspects, which are illustrated by means of concrete and real-life examples.
