Course Specifications
Valid as from the academic year 2019-2020

Sociopolitical History (A004068)

Due to Covid 19, the education and evaluation methods may vary from the information displayed in the schedules and course details. Any changes will be communicated on Ufora.

Course size (nominal values; actual values may depend on programme)
- Credits: 5.0
- Study time: 150 h
- Contact hrs: 40.0 h

Course offerings and teaching methods in academic year 2020-2021
- A (semester 1)
  - Dutch
  - UGent
  - on campus lecture: 25.0 h
  - on campus seminar: 5.0 h
  - online discussion group: 10.0 h
  - self-reliant study activities: 0.0 h

Lecturers in academic year 2020-2021
- Vrints, Antoon LW03 lecturer-in-charge
- Wijnendaele, Jeroen LW03 co-lecturer

Offered in the following programmes in 2020-2021
- Bachelor of Arts in Archaeology
  - credits: 5
  - offering: A
- Bachelor of Arts in History
  - credits: 5
  - offering: A
- Exchange Programme History
  - credits: 5
  - offering: A

Teaching languages
- Dutch

Keywords
- Social and political history, crime, criminalization, conflict regulation, violence, pacification, state formation, monopoly on violence

Position of the course
This advanced course unit succeeds the chronological introductory course units (History of Classical Antiquity, The Middle Ages, Early Modern Period, Modern and Contemporary history). It wants to enable students to develop an insight into political and social developments in Europe, from the Antiquity to today. Societal patterns are analysed in a comparative perspective from a temporal as well as a spatial point of view.
- To have an insight in the nature and in the impact of processes and structures within a longterm perspective in Europe.
- To value the matchmaking between historiography and other human or social sciences.
- To deal with changes, insecurity, ambiguity and scientific polemic in a correct way.

Contents
The theme of this course is the sociopolitical history of crime in Europe from Antiquity to the present. It consists of an historical approach of the perceptions, institutions and practises in the broad field of penal policy, crime and crime control. What kinds of behaviour were criminalized and which not? What kinds of behaviors were criminalized and which are not? What shape did processes of criminalization take? Who determined criminalization processes, which groups they did they aimed at and how did these groups? What do these questions reveal about social structures and processes of change?
Crime is used as an access to investigate the structure of the bonds between individuals/groups within various contexts (social dimension), the basis of power relations (political dimension) and the change over time of social bonds and power relations (historical dimension).
Annually, several varying themes are treated. This concerns issues such as the history of violence in long term perspective, the evolution of conflict settlement from informal to formal strategies, crime in urban and rural areas, crime and gender...

(Approved)

Initial competences

To have successfully completed the courses History of the Classical Antiquity, History of the Middle Ages, Early Modern History and History of the Modern and Contemporary Period, or to have acquired the necessary skills by other means.

Final competences

1. Have proficient knowledge of the historical terminological framework, the most important historical facts, and historical explanations.
2. Have a referential framework for various periods: the Ancien Near East, classical antiquity, the middle ages, the early modern period, and modern and contemporary history.
3. Have basic knowledge of models from the social and historical sciences including sociology, philosophy, literary sciences, law, political sciences, communication sciences, and economics.
4. Be able to initiate problem-oriented historical research.
5. Have the ability to assess, employ, and place the result of historical research within the correct national and international historiographical context.
6. To be able to interpret, evaluate, and report on existant research (also in another language than Dutch) and on one’s own initial research or research plans.
7. Be conscious of the importance of scientific integrity.
8. Have the ability to critically reflect upon the role of the global perspective, the dynamics of processes, and recurrences in historical situations.
9. Be able to approach a problem from multiple perspectives – multiperspectivism.
10. To have the ability to report in writing on current scientific discussions in historiography (also in another language than Dutch) using an adequate critical apparatus in a clearly structured, academically justified text, written in a clear and academically correct language.
11. Have the ability to critically assess social issues and contemporary views and contextualize them historically.
12. Have the ability to interpret contemporary developments from a historical-comparative perspective.
13. Be able to demonstrate cultural sensitivity, respect for diversity and the ability to reflect on continuity and change from a long-term perspective.
14. To have the ability to participate actively in group discussions (also in another language than Dutch) and to communicate the results of historical research to both experts and peers in a clearly structured oral presentation, in a clear and academically correct language.

Conditions for credit contract

Access to this course unit via a credit contract is determined after successful competences assessment

Conditions for exam contract

Access to this course unit via an exam contract is unrestricted

Teaching methods

On campus lecture, online discussion group, on campus seminar, self-reliant study activities

Extra information on the teaching methods

Lecture, independent work, online discussion group, seminar

Learning materials and price

- Reader (Minerva)
- PowerPointPresentations (Minerva)

Given the knowledge of sociology students in this regard, one or two articles of the reader which introduce sociological concepts for non-sociologists, are not learning materials for these students. The lecturer will clearly indicate this during the lectures.

References

Course content-related study coaching

Possibility of asking questions during course and in the online discussion group; the lecturer is available via e-mail; support via Minerva; feedback after exams.

Evaluation methods

end-of-term evaluation and continuous assessment

Examination methods in case of periodic evaluation during the first examination period

Oral examination

(Approved)
Examination methods in case of periodic evaluation during the second examination period
   Oral examination

Examination methods in case of permanent evaluation
   Participation, assignment, report

Possibilities of retake in case of permanent evaluation
   Examination during the second examination period is possible

Extra information on the examination methods
   Students post each week before the course a question on the basis of preparatory reading on the discussion a question. At the end of the semester, students will submit an individual paper aimed at exploring a theme in an independent way. The paper will be discussed during the oral examination and is the starting point of a number of open questions based on the teaching material.

Calculation of the examination mark
   Periodical evaluation: 40 %, non-periodical evaluation: 60 %.
   Students who do not take part in the assessment of one or more parts of the course evaluation or obtain a mark of less than 10/20 for one of its parts cannot pass the course evaluation. Should the average mark be higher than 10/20, the final mark will be reduced to the highest non-pass mark (= 9).

Facilities for Working Students
   1. Possible exemption from educational activities requiring student attendance
   2. The examination cannot be rescheduled
   3. Feedback can be given by email, telephone or during an appointment during office hours
   For more information concerning flexible learning: contact the monitoring service of the faculty of Arts and philosophy

(Approved)