Teaching languages

Dutch, Italian

Keywords

Italian, vocabulary, speaking skills, reading skills, academic writing

Position of the course

The study unit "Italian Language Practice D" (I2PD) aims to apply the acquired knowledge to different skills and includes not only supervised speaking and conversation exercises, but also free, creative speaking exercises. The aim is to develop speaking and conversation skills on day-to-day subjects relating to topical matters, with specific attention to communicative interaction. This study unit also seeks to expand vocabulary, for example through reading assignments (two books and several texts). Writing skills are also further developed, with particular attention to academic writing in Italian.

Contents

The study unit "Italian Language Practice D" (I2PD) offers a set of varied oral activities, including conversations on themes extracted from recent press articles. Three short films constitute the basis, or part, of the communication exercises. Students are supervised from close-up to improve their speaking and conversation skills. The course also integrates the following elements: extension of thematic vocabulary (Intertaal) and communicative functions and expressions. Furthermore the basic principles of academic writing are learnt and applied. Students also required to read independently an Italian book and at least two short stories.
