Position of the course

The unit of study "Spanish: Specialized Translation Practice I" builds on translation skills previously acquired in the courses A2VN and S3VT and prepares for the translation of texts in which style is prominent and in which many elements are open to multiple interpretation. The course draws on concepts and insights from Translation Studies, Literary Studies, Stylistics, and it emphasizes the importance of acquiring cultural and social background knowledge.

Contents

The unit of study "Spanish: Specialized Translation Practice II" focuses on translational problems in literary and essayistic texts (i.e., narrative fiction and essays). The focus is specifically on translation strategies related to genre and text conventions, style and emotion (irony and humor included), the language of narrative texts, language variety and creativity in language, and the transfer of cultural references. Reference is also made to the pervasiveness of style features in other genres.

Initial competences

The student:

- is able, under supervision, to analyze and translate Spanish texts of more than average difficulty, as found in professional contexts; and can revise/review such translations
- can write Spanish texts of more than average difficulty, as found in professional contexts, both on the basis of instructions and on the basis of existing textual input;
- can make adequate and critical use of the relevant heuristic resources needed for the above-mentioned tasks.

Final competences

- 1 Having a command of Dutch at professional native speaker level in terms of comprehension and writing skills and of Spanish at C1+ level of the Common European Framework of Reference for Languages in terms of reading and comprehension [assessed].
- 2 During the translation process, adequately applying advanced institutional and intercultural knowledge and being able to reflect on the interinstitutional transfers [assessed].
- 3 Having advanced knowledge of the academic study of translation and, based on that knowledge, reflecting on translation as a process and as a product [assessed].
- 4 Critically applying theoretical translation models and methods of analysis to complex problems [not assessed].
- 5 Producing and assessing a translation with critical self-reflection, in new and complex contexts [assessed].
- 6 In the translation process, adequately applying an advanced degree of contrastive linguistic expertise at different levels (lexically, grammatically, textually, pragmatically) [assessed].
- 7 During the translation process, making use of the traditional and electronic resources, as well as technological tools [assessed].

Teaching methods

Guided self-study, group work, self-reliant study activities, online lecture

Extra information on the teaching methods

The instructor introduces and teaches a fine-grained feedback and assessment system that pinpoints and integrates the most relevant criteria, procedures, and features for early-stage students of literary translation: (1) the 'Petra-E Framework of Reference for the Education and Training of Literary Translators' (mainly levels LT1 and LT2); (2) and the 'Evaluation Form of Literary Translations toward the Assignment of Incentive Grants for Emerging Literary Translators'.

The teaching mostly adheres to the following standard format. The texts are posted on the electronic learning platform Ufora. They are introduced with regard to context and style, and the translations are individually finished by the students at home (either individually or in pair). At given times, students furthermore assess each other's translations. Students submit their translations via Ufora. The most relevant issues, solutions, and errors are discussed with reference to a PowerPoint presentation. General translational and course-specific evaluation criteria are explained. Due to COVID19 the teaching methods may be subject to change, according to the needs of the moment: online teaching by means of audio-PowerPoints, Bongo or Zoom sessions, Teams tutorials, Ufora chat.
