Trefwoorden

Maritime law, master, shipowner, salvage, collision; ship arrest.

Situering

Providing understanding and knowledge of the applicable "admiralty" law rules with respect to transport over sea. Indicating the necessary legal sources to be used, with reference to the applicable international conventions where available and to the Belgian maritime code as an illustration of national legal regimes. Teaching the student how to work with these legal sources. Providing a sound legal basis to the student attending an interdisciplinary masters programme in maritime sciences.

Inhoud

The course contains an overview of mainly rules of private law applicable in the national legal orders. More particularly attention is being paid to the legal status of the ship (legal personality, nationality...), maritime liens and mortgages, ship's arrest, the status of the master, (limitation) of liability of the shipowner, collisions and salvage.

Begincompetenties

Basic legal knowledge, particularly commercial law and liability issues.

Eindcompetenties

- 1 Having knowledge and understanding of the applicable rules with respect to the maritime transport operation : private and public law, national and international
- 2 Understanding of the extent of supranational harmonization of the subject matter (international law)
- 3 Realizing the links of maritime law with other legal disciplines, such as public international law, commercial law, liability law, insolvency, labour law, civil procedure, etc.
- 4 Understanding the relationship between the legal regime and economic characteristics and technical features of maritime transport
- 5 Ability to assess basic legal problems and disputes and formulate an initial solution
- 6 Ability to reason and argue in a motivated manner on fundamental policy issues, such as shipowner and maritime carrier liability limitation
